CHIMNEYS

For several years CAPVOND PLASTICS have produced many different styles of GRP mock chimneys. Not only are the chimneys decorative but they also serve to disguise heating vents protruding through the roof structure which may not blend with surrounding architecture or with the house style.

Due to their strong but light weight design a large amount of space can be saved by the lack of construction work supporting the chimney. This can be considerable benefit during the design of offices, nursing homes, hotels and other commercial premises, allowing for free use of space to maximum extent.

Many type of mock chimney have been produced from simple single pot designs suitable for small houses through to large multi-pot designs which can stand over two meters high. Fixed to the roof by a simply constructed upstand the finish of each design may vary from smooth through to roughly texture.

Each mock chimney is made to order and to specific design. Please contact our design department for further advice.
